Master's Degree in Archaeology

The M.A., M.S. in Archaeology is a flexible 33-hour program culminating in a master's thesis. All students take a common core of four courses (ANT 386, 460, 481, and 488). In addition to 6 hours of Master's Thesis (ANT 499). In consultation with the graduate advisor and committee chair, each student chooses a concentration in prehistoric, historical, or biological archaeology electives, and a thesis topic based on his or her individual interests.

2. Provide a list of other programs referencing this program.

None.

3. Provide a rationale for deleting program.

This program is now subsumed in the Master's Degree in Anthropology, which appears for the first time in the current Graduate Catalog on page 139.

4. Describe the expected effect of the proposed program deletion on existing campus programs.

None. The concentrations for the Master's degree in Archaeology are now part of the Master's Degree in Anthropology.

5. What arrangements will be made for program faculty and students?

Students may either complete the Master's Degree in Archaeology (if they started prior to 2013-2014) or transfer to the new Master's Degree in Anthropology. Concentrations for prehistoric, historical and biological archaeology remain the same. There will be no impact on either students or faculty.

6. What is the anticipated budget effect?

None. The budget remains the same.

7. No Did this program previously count towards teacher education?
