Additional Comments:

- A grade of C or better is required in all minor courses.
- For education majors enrolled in a full educational licensure program, this minor may lead to an ISBE subsequent endorsement. Additional requirements, including passage of content exam(s) and clinical hours, may be required beyond the coursework listed. Since ISBE subsequent endorsement requirements are subject to change due to updated licensure code, students must confirm current requirements with their academic advisor each year of enrollment to ensure required coursework and additional ISBE licensure requirements for the endorsement are completed at the time of graduation.
- Passing the required health content exam leads to an Illinois Professional Licensure Endorsement, equipping students to teach health education to students in grades PreK12.

Catalog Short Description for Major, Minor, Certificate

Pursuing a minor in school health education greatly enhances the educational experience of non-school health education majors across all concentrations at the university.

By successfully completing courses within their educational field of study and recommended minor courses, teacher candidates enhance their knowledge and skills in health education and may become eligible to pursue a health endorsement. This program ensures all education majors seeking this specialized coursework, will gain the knowledge and skills needed to teach health education along with preparation for the appropriate content exam.
